ACADEMIC PROJECTS

- Crowd Estimation Using Object Detection and Tracking

A people counting machine learning program file which counts upcount and downcount of people in a top view video. The main motto of the project was to use computer vision, tracking and detection through python libraries like OpenCV, dlib, imutils and other related libraries to provide an application to control crowds in public places.

- Sentimental Analysis of Tweets

A machine learning solution to look beyond the quantitative summary and uni-dimensional interpretation of online user reviews to provide a more comprehensive view of online user-generated content. Deep Learning algorithms were used to analyze tweets and take out a sentiment from them.
